One of the most prevalent health conditions to affect Americans, hearing loss goes chronically untreated despite the medical, mental health and financial consequences of inaction. World Hearing Day spotlights the over 5% of the world’s population, which roughly include 48 million Americans, who have disabling hearing loss. Loud noises, ear infections, kidney disease, diabetes and many other conditions can cause hearing loss that may go undetected for many years, silently interfering with your quality of life. More importantly, those who have hearing loss can benefit greatly from early identification and suitable, timely interventions.
